1. Title of the Scenario: Lahyu, SHS Stud

Name of Student A: Justin Gerald G. Lokeag 2. Student A's response to the moral dilemma: My response to this scenario, is Eric is in a tough spot. Because being a relationship with a student is a cross a line their, but being a dad is important, and staying as a teacher disrespects the school and parents. maybe there is a way or another to get another job to support his family. but if eric still want to continue on the same school it will be a slap on the face to the parents. The trust on him as a teacher will be a disgrace. Madeline will take a hit for the overs she made. She will be ridiculed that violating was continuing relationship before.	Name of Student B: Cedric, Joel F. Cayaban 2. Student B's response to the moral dilemma: If I were Eric, I would first of all apologize to the parents of Madeline for not being a proper adult in the situation. I would then proceed to resign myself from teaching. That would be the best way for me to show that I'm guilty because of my action, and at the very least act as a professional teacher at the end. In the situation, Eric is the adult and professional, Madeline on the other hand is still a minor and minors tend to make hasty decisions and is easily convinced. That is the time that Eric should've corrected Madeline because it is a taboo to have a relationship between teacher and student, Eric should've been fully aware of this before entering the path of a teacher. There are many ways to earn money and if I were Eric, I would do my best to find another job to take responsibility for what I did and for my baby.

3. Student A's comment on Student B's response:

His response is similar to mine but in a way that he immerses himself in Eric's situation. I agree to resign myself from teaching, because there is a rule that he breaks. Also, on the student's not good decision, maybe she follows her love heart so she did that. There is a taboo also that shall not be intimate a teacher and student, I support it. Eric must be aware also because of the taboo. The consequence here is very bad situation. It leads to a problem. Responsibility also becomes a thing here. I agree with the response of Cedric Joel Cayaban.

3. Student B's comment on Student A's response:

Based from my response, the moral dilemma and Loleng's response, I agree to Loleng's response. Not only Eric would suffer from the repercussions of their relationship. Madeline would also suffer if Eric were to continue teaching at their school, because being the topic of everyone's conversation because of their relation is inevitable. If Eric were to remain, the air and atmosphere if they were together at the school would be uneasy. One thing that Madeline can do is to transfer to a different school, and opinions vary from person to person, but to others and also to Madeline, that would be escaping from everyone. That's why it is better for Eric to resign and why Loleng and me both had the same answer and opinion.
